John Hamel, LCSW (Editor)

"An achievement of extraordinary scope."

- Sandra Stith, PhD, LCMFT, Professor and Program Director, Marriage and Family Therapy, Kansas State University

This casebook documents the experiences of a diverse collection of families suffering from domestic violence. Hamel provides a wealth of insight into those unique cases of domestic violence that vary in their composition, ethnic status, and socioeconomic status.

The case authors outline specialized therapeutic approaches for each case, including cognitive-behavioral, family systems, feminist, problem-solving, and many others. Each account includes a thorough description of the assessment procedure, treatment goals and reasons for selecting a particular approach and an account of the course of treatment. While the book is primarily intended for mental health professionals and graduate students in the fields of family therapy, counseling, and family violence, the book will also be of value to anyone in the field of family violence, especially those concerned with domestic violence public policy, prevention, and intervention.

Special Features:

- Includes male-perpetrated, female-perpetrated, and mutual violence scenarios
- Presents a variety of theoretical orientations
- Includes discussion questions after each case study
